April 1936

After opposing White for governor, Smith needs White's help for new govt job.

April 10, 1936

Governor Hugh L. White,
Jackson, Mississippi.

Dear Governor:

I am advised that Senator S. H. Smith has made application for the position of Inspector under the new Gasoline Tax Act.

I wish to recommend his application to you for serious consideration. It was my privilege and pleasure to serve in the State Senate with Senator Smith during the last administration. There was not in that body a more conscientious and hard working senator. He manifested, at all times, a keen interest in all matters coming before us and displayed an unusual degree of energy. His sincerity and courage were never doubted; you could always know where Sam Smith stood.

Senator Smith served a term as sheriff of Calhoun County and acquired experience that would be very valuable to him in this work.

It is my deliberate judgment that Senator Smith possesses all the qualifications required to fill the position he seeks. His energy, intelligence, honesty and courage peculiarly qualifies him for this position.

Yours sincerely,

Geo. R. Nables
